

Attention Children's Librarians

Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County is committed to helping you support parents of young children in your community. Educators are available to serve as a resource to parents during your Parent / Toddler Programs on the following topics:

Understanding Toddlers

Parents have many questions about toddler development and behavioral issues, ranging from temper tantrums to toilet learning, bedtime issues, sibling rivalry, and learning through play. Our parent educator can offer research-based strategies to cope with these and many other issues, as well as provide support for parents and other caregivers.

Feeding Little Folks

Parents with questions regarding their children's food needs can learn about ways to help them accept a wider variety of foods, common feeding behaviors, the developmental changes that affect their eating and how to get young children to accept responsibility for their own eating.
